

Nathan A. Jacobson, M.D. is a board certified orthopaedic surgeon based out of Great Plains Health in North Platte, NE where he maintains a busy sports medicine practice working with all types and levels of athlete. He is the team physician for the local college (Mid-Plains Community College) and multiple regional high schools. He has a passion for the rodeo athlete and western life. As the lead physician of the Great Plains Health Rodeo Sports Medicine Team he regularly provides his medical expertise to rodeo events sponsored by the Pro Rodeo Cowboy Association (PRCA), Mid-States Rodeo Association, National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association (NIRA) - Great Plains Region and the Nebraska High School Rodeo Association (NHSRA). Dr. Jacobson is also a member of the Justin Boots Sports Medicine Team.

Dr. Jacobson graduated from Grinnell College in Iowa as a varsity letterman in football and swimming. He went on to medical school at the American University of the Caribbean. He did his internship at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota and orthopaedic surgery residency at Wayne State University in Detroit, Michigan. He did an additional fellowship year in sports medicine at the TRIA Orthopaedic Center in Bloomington, Minnesota. Through his training and career Dr. Jacobson has served numerous roles with all levels (high school, college, amateur and professional) and types of sports teams (Football, Basketball, Wrestling, Baseball, Softball, Hockey, Swimming, Gymnastics & Rodeo).

Nathan was born and raised in southern California but found a home and a passion for the Midwest while attending college in Iowa. Nathan and his wife Jennifer live in North Platte, Nebraska with their son Paul James and daughter Cheyenne.